

INTRODUCING respire BY HYATT.

Hypo-allergenic rooms with treated fabrics and purified air that offer an extra level of comfort for those with allergy sensitivities.

LEARN MORE ▷

ART REVIEW | WESTCHESTER

Maps for Navigating to a New Perspective

By SYLVIANE GOLD

Published: December 3, 2010

What are maps for? Of course, you think you know, and so did I — until I found my way to “Mapping: Memory and Motion in Contemporary Art,” at the Katonah Museum of Art. The works in this terrific exhibition offer so many takes on the subject that you feel your personal definition of cartography exploding as you walk — with no map to guide you — through the galleries.

Enlarge This Image

Courtesy of the artist and Hostfelt Gallery
“South Pole” (2009), by Lordy Rodriguez.

For some of the show’s 38 artists, existing maps serve as raw material to be turned into sculptures, collages and such. For others, a map is the end result, created from experience or imagination to fix a place, a time or an idea. But all these objects, gathered by the guest curator, Sarah Tanguy, force you to reckon with maps as aids to meditation, objects of pleasure, blueprints for war, records of subjugation. And oh, yes, I almost forgot: as tools for getting from here to there and back again.

Locating “here” can become tricky, however. You’ll get lost if you try to follow Karey Ellen Kessler’s fascinating maplike drawings — they’ll pilot you no farther than her psyche. Kysa Johnson tracks the travel paths of subatomic particles in swirling colored lines — there’s no Lonely Planet accompanying her map, either. At first glance, Lordy Rodriguez’s delineations of the North and South Poles seem nearer our traditional notions of what a map should be. But closer examination reveals that these two ink drawings literally upend our sense of the globe, reordering our perspective and providing a biting commentary on it as well.

Several of the maps on view document not just what is, or what might be, but what is no longer. In her “Voyages” series, Joyce Kozloff reproduces antique maps of faraway islands on Venetian carnival masks. The titles — “Pola,” “Nova Guinea,” “Pulo Penang” — and the colorful painted backgrounds evoke the varied cultures that once thrived

Enlarge This Image

Courtesy of the artist and DC Moore Gallery
“Voyages 19: Pola” (2004), by Joyce Kozloff.

- RECOMMEND
- TWITTER
- E-MAIL
- SEND TO PHONE
- PRINT
- REPRINTS
- SHARE

Log in to see what your friends are sharing on nytimes.com. Privacy Policy | What's This?

Log In With Facebook

What's Popular Now

The Hollywood Issue - 14 Actors Acting - James Franco, Natalie Portman, Matt Damon and More - Video.

The Hollywood Issue - 14 Actors Acting - James Franco, Natalie Portman, Matt Damon and More - Video.

CHRISTIE'S
DISCOVER MORE OF THE STORIES >

FROM ONE OF A KIND ITEMS TO EVERYDAY LUXURY

> Bid on what you love

Breaking News Alerts by E-Mail

Sign up to be notified when important news breaks. mail@lucianperkins.com Sign Up
Change E-mail Address | Privacy Policy

MOST POPULAR

E-MAILED BLOGGED SEARCHED VIEWED

1. Top Test Scores From Shanghai Stun Educators
2. Op-Ed Contributor: The Tea Maker
3. Maureen Dowd: Pass the Caribou Stew
4. Tracing the Spark of Creative Problem-Solving
5. Thomas L. Friedman: Still Digging
6. The Year's Best Cookbooks
7. Parents Embrace Documentary on Pressures of School
8. Aspirin Helps in Reducing Cancer Deaths, a Study Finds
9. Web Site for Teenagers With Literary Leanings
10. David Brooks: Social Science Palooza

"Okesa" (2010), by Norman Akers.

on those islands; the sameness of the masks and their empty eyeholes suggest the way the Western gaze reduced such places to spoils of empire.

In "Okesa," which means "halfway there" in Osage, Norman Akers overlays a schematic depiction of the tribe's reservation with a realistic painting of a panicked elk. Oversize acorns imply that perhaps regeneration is possible; but this is a map of destruction.

The artists who manipulate existing maps often create dense visual puns. In "Highland Dress," Susan Stockwell turns Victorian-era government maps of Scotland into a 19th-century gown, repurposing their long blue lochs into ribbonlike accents for the bell-shaped skirt and their bright-red contour lines into embroidery for the bust and shoulders. The sculpture, elegant and eerie, reminds us that one diminutive woman once ruled an empire on which the sun never set.

Books of maps rather than individual ones are the medium for Doug Beube. In "Crater," he carves out hollows of various depths, rendering a large atlas useless but creating a powerful topography of his own. The atlas in "Invisible Cities" is equally unreadable, its pages folded and sewn into a pleated cylinder capped at both ends with a decorative metal finial. Ms. Tanguy compares it to a reliquary; I see a miniature Torah. In either case, the map has been transformed into an object of reverence.

Matthew Cusick uses maps not for sculpture but for painting. Created from inlaid bits of 1960s and '70s road maps, his 2004 "Transamerican" depicts a Pontiac Firebird, flaming eagle hood decal and all. Made prior to the bailout of General Motors but after the demise of the storied muscle car, the work reads almost like prophecy these days. From a distance, the car has a ghostly presence; as you get closer, it disappears into the map fragments, like a mirage.

There are similar phantasms in Lincoln Schatz's shimmering video, which shows a man using a compass and other navigational tools to chart a journey. The point of view shifts constantly, and overlapping sequences fade in and out like dreams. There's something utterly compelling about the contrast between the precision of the task and the hazy, computer-generated flow of images. And the man turns out to be J. Craig Venter, who found a way to map the mapmakers when he plotted the human genome.

"Mapping: Memory and Motion in Contemporary Art," at the Katonah Museum of Art, 134 Jay Street (Route 22), Katonah, through Jan. 9; katonahmuseum.org or (914) 232-9555, extension 0.

A version of this review appeared in print on December 5, 2010, on page WE11 of the New York edition.

Get the full newspaper experience, and more, delivered to your Mac or PC. Times Reader 2.0: Try it FREE for 2 full weeks.

E-MAIL _____

PRINT _____

REPRINTS _____

Go to Complete List »

How bullying pays

ALSO IN BUSINESS »

Delayed childrearing, more stressful lives
A brash bettor stumbles

nytimes.com

BUSINESS

ADVERTISEMENTS

Find your dream home with
The New York Times Real Estate

Follow The New York Times on Twitter

Watch today's top videos

See the news in the making. Watch
TimesCast, a daily news video.

Ads by Google what's this?

Map and Directions
Find Detailed Maps and Directions
Road Maps, Traffic Reports, & More
mytrafficmaps.net

Marine Navigation System
Complete with all US NOAA charts
Only $19.95
www.cruisingservices.net

Aerial Lake Maps
Underwater Lakes Mapping, GPS
Surface Maps Bathymetry. Free Quote
www.VirginiaLakeManagement.com

Ads by Google

what's this?

The New Google Nexus S

Equipped with Gingerbread.

Because Faster is Always Better.

www.google.com/nexus

Get Free E-mail Alerts on These Topics

Art

Maps

Sculpture

Westchester County (NY)

INSIDE NYTIMES.COM

TRAVEL »

Ski Deals Abound — Here's How to Find Them

MUSIC »

Puccini's Western, in Search of Lyrical Gold

OPINION »

Yoko Ono: The Tea Maker
Remembering laughing late into the night with John Lennon.

DINING & WINE »

Junk Food Is a Source of Comfort on Capitol Hill

OPINION »

Room for Debate: Should Big Banks Be Split Apart?

HEALTH »

Do Energy Drinks Improve Performance?

Home | World | U.S. | N.Y. / Region | Business | Technology | Science | Health | Sports | Opinion | Arts | Style | Travel | Jobs | Real Estate | Autos | Back to Top

Copyright 2010 The New York Times Company | Privacy | Terms of Service | Search | Corrections | RSS | First Look | Help | Contact Us | Work for Us | Advertise | Site Map

MORE IN N.Y. / REGION (1 OF 22 ARTICLES)

Bloomberg Critiques Econo

Read More »